

THEY COULD BOTH WIN! Minnie Bloomquist and Simon Train, mother and son, familiar radio voices to Glades area country and western music fans, have both been nominated for the title of the nation's most popular disc jockey.

It's all in the family Mother and son vie for DJ titles

By AILSA DEWING

It's no big news when two disc jockeys in the same city are competing for a "DJ of the Year" title but it has to be a "first" when the two are mother and son!

And Belle Glade has that first in Minnie Bloomquist, WSWN's familiar country music announcer and her son, Simon Train, a WIRK-FM "Country K" personality.

But there's no feuding in the family because although they are both semi-finalists in Country Music Association's annual search for the best country music announcers, they're competing in different categories.

As a Belle Glade announcer, Mrs. Bloomquist is a nominee in the "small market" category while son Simon, heard on the West Palm Beach airwaves in a "major market" contestant. Both could win and that would be an even bigger "first."

Mrs. Bloomquist is presently on vacation from her daily afternoon stint as a country music announcer and her Sunday morning spot, introducing the gospel music programs. But come September, she'll be back chatting with her radio audience, relating country-western song lyrics to her own background as a Missouri farm girl and farm wife.

Country music is pure nostalgia for Minnie Bloomquist. One of her favorite songs is Dolly Parton's "Cost of Many Colors."

"It's a song about making a coat from scraps of colored materials," explains Minnie and for her it's reminiscent of childhood days, growing up as one of eight children in a farm family during hard times.

Minnie became a country music announcer through her son who was already a familiar radio personality when his mother came to Florida three years ago. It was he who encouraged her and taught her to operate the equipment in the studio.

Now both have been named semi-finalists in the Nashville-based Country Music Association competition, voted on by fellow radio announcers.

There will be a second voting this month, Minnie explains, and five finalists at the stage will be judged by samples of their work on their air.

Final winners in each category will receive their colleagues' acclaim as the best country disc jockeys in the nation. The awards are presented in Nashville during a nationally televised program.

Sketch plans okayed for city subdivision

BELLE GLADE—Preliminary plans for a 28-home subdivision in the northeast area have been approved by city commissioners.

Sketch plans of the first phase in a development to be known as East Lake Park Subdivision were reviewed by commissioners Monday night after being recommended by the city planning and zoning board.

City Planner Joe Fay, in outlining the proposed subdivision sketch for commissioners, described the average building lot as measuring 90 by 110 feet with the 28 lots occupying about 20 acres.

Surveyor for the developers is Pedro Gonzales who told commissioners the subdivision is the first of several phases in a development which will extend northward to Airport Road.

Approval of the sketch plans is only the first step, with final plans yet to be submitted for commissioner's approval.

In a related action, commissioners approved annexation and R-1 zoning of four properties adjacent to the proposed subdivision and contiguous with East Avenue A properties already within the city limits.

Seeking the annexation were George and Gene Connell of 101 NE Seventh St.; Hueston and Martha Connell, 275 Begonia Dr.; Pahokee; and Michael J. and Janet Marr, 464 E. Palm Beach Rd.

In a separate request to come before commissioners, Roe W. and Alma V. Steele asked for a rezoning of two lots, fronting on Airport Road and adjoining the Alma Subdivision, from R-1 to B-3.

Action on the request was postponed to consider a possible requirement calling for screening between the rezoned commercial property and adjoining residential properties.

West area M-H board seeking first director

BELLE GLADE—The job of screening applicants for the post of West Palm Beach County Mental Health Clinic's first executive director will begin this month.

Applications have been received through advertisements, according to Gene R. Cross, who has headed the steering committee during the formation of the west area's board of directors.

Homer Hand has been named call person on the selection committee whose members include Dr. Ahmed Barhouh, Estella Pyfrom, James Smith, Jr., and James Wilkison, Jr. The committee will study the applications and set up interviews with their choice of candidates.

Members of the newly formed board of directors have begun meeting in preparation for the transition which establishes the western area of the county mental health organization as an entity separate from the West Palm Beach clinic.

Thirty members have been named to the 15-member board with the name of Roswell Harrington proposed and awaiting confirmation from the advisory group.

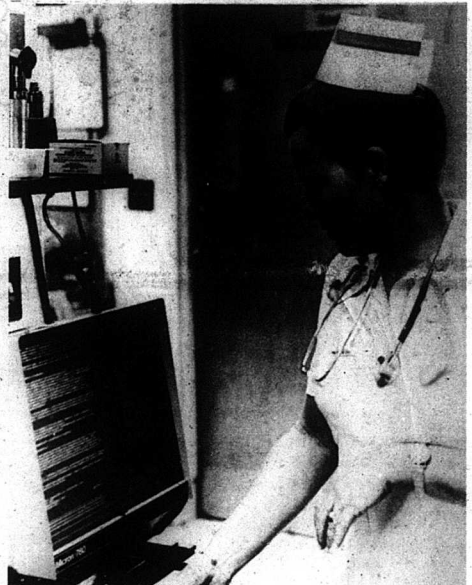

By September, sensitivity training and orientation sessions will be conducted for board members.

Formation of the Glades area mental health board and of the clinic as a separately funded unit were approved earlier this year by District 9 Mental Health Board of the Florida Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services, with the goal of improving and expanding services for residents at the western end of the county.

Board members serving are Doris Crouch, J.C. Davis, Coley Jones, Winnie Bell Wade, James H. Wilkinson, Jr., Vivian McKinstry and Mayor Norma Norman all of Pahokee.

Pahokee water plant bids overrun available funds

PAHOKEE—The cost of making mandated improvements to the city's water treatment plant is higher than the funds available.

City commissioners have consequently accepted a low bid from Widell Associates, Inc. of Ft. Lauderdale which deletes three phases of the project, at least temporarily.

Acting on advice of its consulting engineer, J.R. Sloane of the firm of Russell & Axon, commissioners have accepted a base bid of $379,700, while sources of additional funding are sought.

Cost of the total construction, per Widell's low bid, would amount to $757,700. By deducting three alternative proposals within the project, the net project cost is $379,700.

The deducted alternatives include provisions for a lime storage silo, a clarifier and modifications to the chemical feed system.

In a letter to Mayor Norma Norman and commissioners,

Sloane explained: "Total approved FmHA (Farmers Home Loan Administration) loan money for this project amounts to $490,000. This means that there are presently enough funds to award a contract on the project with all three alternatives deducted."

As you are aware it is the Engineer's opinion that the most long-term economic benefit to the City can be realized by the construction of the entire project. Furthermore, we believe that in the very least, the lime storage silo as designed should be constructed as part of this project.

At the request of City Council, we have been pursuing additional funds to allow for this construction. The procedures involved in requesting such funding do not allow full response within one week and in fact, an additional thirty to forty-five days will be necessary before all possible sources are considered."

Since the Department of Environmental Resources consent order requires that an immediate award be made, Sloane reported that the president of Widell Associates, H.E. Pickle, has agreed to add any of the deducted alternatives at the bid price, during the next 60 days.

In addition to the Ft. Lauderdale based firm of Widell, bids were received from Boyle Construction in Deerfield Beach, for a total $811,280; WED Contractors in Winter Haven, $788,800 and WEBS General Contracting of Pompano Beach, $785,823. The firms also bid on deducted alternatives but these did not meet Widell's low bid, Sloane's report shows.

After a unanimous decision by commissioners to accept the Widell bid, Commissioner George Rashley commented, "We better start thinking about the water rates."

Dr. Grear wants 'indoor' rec program added

BELLE GLADE—An appeal from Dr. Effie Grear, principal of Glades Central High School, may result in moving some of the city's summer recreation projects indoors.

Dr. Grear appeared before commissioners Monday night to urge the city to consider using indoor facilities, such as the Lakeshore Middle School and GCHS gym, because of the heat and to provide additional space if needed.

Commenting last summer's program, Dr. Grear said her concern was that the parks will be hot in the summer and she questioned whether three parks were enough to provide space for the program if there are more children enrolled.

According to Mayor Rutledge, city recreation director, some 3,000 children participated in the program last summer.

City Manager Rob Sanders pointed out that more personnel would be needed to add indoor activities but that it might be possible to move some indoors and utilize one of the gyms.

Approval of the school board would be needed if the city decides to make use of school facilities.

Commissioner Dorothy Walker told council members she has also been approached by youngsters complaining that the city's organized softball program is displacing unorganized games and questioning why the city was charging for use of lights for night softball games but not on tennis and basketball courts.

Sanders responded to Commissioner Walker, by saying that there is a "tremendous financial difference" between the summer courts and softball fields. He reviewed the league play schedule to show that it is only during a boxing event that Lake-shore Park will be used three nights a week, leaving four nights available.

Asked by Commissioner Walker whether the $100 fee could be waived for non-league night games, Sanders said it would not be fair to those who are paying. Even the $100 doesn't pay the total on the lights, he said.

Commissioners were also asked Monday night to amend an ordinance which requires a $150 fee for professional boxing events to exempt amateur bouts.

The request came from James Johnson and J.L. Foster who have initiated a boxing program for boys 8 to 15 years old and said they expect to form a local amateur boxing team.

Commissioners indicated they were willing to adapt the ordinance to eliminate fees for the amateur youth events but City Attorney John Baker advised the promoters they also faced state regulations which they need to investigate, including a law which says "offices what organizations may sponsor pugilistic exhibitions."

Commissioners also heard a report from Sanders that the grand opening of Airport Park is tentatively scheduled for mid-July rather than the July 4 weekend so that the city would not have to contend with Pahokee's celebration.

Commissioners approved a three-day budget workshop session for August 1-3.

COMPUTERS ARE PART OF IT for nurses too these days, and nurses-to-be who now have a chance to find out June 12 about a proposed nursing program at Palm Beach Junior College-Glades campus might be interested in the information retrieval system demonstrated about by Wanda Lowe in the Glades General Hospital Emergency Room, who uses a computer to find information on poisonous substances. This is only one of a number of opportunities in nursing demonstrated locally and PBJC Glades is interested in finding men and women who want to study nursing without leaving the area. For more information, call the college or attend a day-long presentation on June 12 at the local college campus.

PHA swale construction nears finish

PAHOKEE—If there ain't rain in the afternoon as it has the past couple of afternoons, the swale construction project by the Palm Beach County Community Development Department in Fremd Village in a couple of days.

Pahokee Housing Authority, Executive Director Randy Mills told the board, the swale construction is completed in Fremd Village with only minor work remaining to be done in Padgett Island. Mills also told the board that paving of the courts is to begin in Fremd Village in a couple of days.

Commissioner Israel Cooper asked Mills if the swale construction by CID was guaranteed to elevate the standing water problems in the project.

Mills told Cooper, nothing was guaranteed, but he estimated most of the water would drain off.

"Last week there were approximately 10 to 13 inches of water standing in people's yards," said Cooper.

Mills said clogged drainage was the major cause of the standing water, but most of the drains had since been cleared and the water was properly being drained off.

Mills added that the only other major problems he sees in causing standing water would be if the lake level rose and the canals were not pumped during the rainy season.

"The water will have no place to go, if the canals are filled to capacity," said Mills. HUD (Housing and Urban Development) approved the Authority's modernization plans.

Mills said Echoles-Collins Electric and Plumbing Company of Belle Glade has been approved to install heaters in units in Stuckey and McClure Village at a cost of $78,718.

The board, faced with growing numbers of complaints from tenants on the garbage collection situation, authorized Mills to work out an agreement with the city of Pahokee.

Mills suggested to the board the purchase of a garbage truck and containers to serve the PHA four projects.

Mills said he had spoken with the city about a possible agreement where the city would supply the manpower for the truck, and in return the city would use the truck for its garbage collection on the days the authority did not collect garbage.

The board agreed to look further into the matter of an agreement.

Mills said that last year he had received a price approximately one half of that cost, but the truck had been a demonstrator.

Mills said he had spoken with the city about a possible agreement where the city would supply the manpower for the truck, and in return the city would use the truck for its garbage collection on the days the authority did not collect garbage.

The board agreed to look further into the matter of an agreement.

Electioneering to move in closer?

PAHOKEE—City Commissioners are moving election day activities back to their old stomping grounds—the lawn adjacent to city hall.

If an ordinance proposed by commissioners, makes it through a public hearing, the next election day in Pahokee will be like the good old days. Candidates, voters, and all comers will be allowed to congregate 35 feet from the fire station polling place instead of maintaining a 100-yard distance.

Because it had no local ordinance the city was required to adhere to the state law during municipal elections May 6 and 13 which kept all electioneering 100 yards away.

By adopting a local ordinance setting the 35-foot buffer, citizens would be able to maintain the traditional custom of poll-watching closer to the scene.

On cats, traffic lights, and Spanish Eskimos

CRACKER CRUMBS

BY DEAN JONES

In the "Suspensions Confirmed" Department, I was sitting in a city commission workshop last week, when the commissioners were going over a number of recommendations on Southwest Avenue E, and the words "Not Functional" darn near hit me in the face they jumped off the page so fast.

The recommendation was to install two more of those big pushbuttons at the intersection of E and South Main. You know, the ones with the signs that say, "Push me and I'll change the signal so you can get across."

Well, words to that effect, anyway.

After years of punching those big buttons, with a change of the signal made obvious only by its absence, I long ago came to the conclusion that that's all there was...a pushbutton with no wiring and absolutely nothing that would change a signal to allow you to walk across the intersection.

The whole idea, I figured, was that the buttons were put up to give pedestrians something on which to take out their frustrations, which is why they're so big and heavy. After all, if you're gonna take out your frustrations, it's gonna be on something strong enough to take the frustrations without breaking...unless you're so mad you want to something I break.

Well, when I saw the words, "Not Functional", I just knew I'd been right all along but I wanted to play the role of the unbiased reporter so I didn't write anything about it until after I'd gotten a chance to talk with someone who knew something about those buttons.

The someone was Ron Sigmon, the city's public works director, and he hastened to explain the "Not Functional" didn't mean the pushbuttons weren't connected to the traffic lights, it meant they wouldn't be, worthwhile because there wasn't enough pedestrian traffic at the intersection. That, he said, was why they weren't recommended by the city staff.

Ron also said I was only partially right in my suspicions, that while many of the buttons do work and do out the time it takes for a pedestrian to get the green light, there are quite a few others installed in various cities that aren't connected to anything.

I didn't notice until after we'd hung up that Ron didn't say whether the Belle Glade buttons are connected to anything so I guess you pushes your button and takes your chances.

One of the things I didn't notice when I was writing the Crumbs last week, about the Census Bureau's Were You Counted promo, was a couple of the questions included in the Spanish language version, which we didn't run anyway for lack of space.

The Spanish language form is apparently an exact duplicate of the English language version and it took Ailsa to point out the question concerning the respondent's race. I'm not positive but I don't believe I've ever met an Eskimo or Aleut whose first language was Spanish. Come to think of it, I don't think I've ever met that many Spanish-speaking Vietnamese.

Well, I'm glad to see Nibs has something in common with her cousins. Nibs, is a calico cat I had foisted off on me back in December and the name fits. Like many cats I've come into contact with, she figures she rules the roost and with an attitude like that it's only natural to refer to her as Queenie or Her Nibs.

We had cats galore at our house when I was growing up so you'd think I'd know quite a bit about the critters and, to some extent, you'd think right.

The difference is, though, that back then, I believed cats belonged outside, an attitude I picked up from Pappy, but living in a trailer park is a different game. I figured it'd be better all around, and easier on my neighbors' nerves, if I kept Her Feline Majesty inside, particularly since I couldn't afford to have her spayed when I fell heir to her.

At any rate, to stop beating around the bush, a number of my friends have asked if Nibs has been in heat yet and the only answer I could give 'em was I didn't know because I wasn't sure just what to expect.

Well, I know now. She made a point to tell me...and tell me...and tell me...and tell me until I was sick of hearing about it.

She never was much for talking before this but I guess she was sorta like the seven-year-old-boy who spoke his first words at the dinner table one day when he told his mother the iced tea was too sweet.

His amazed mother, once she picked up her jaw up off the floor, asked him why he'd waited seven years to speak. "We all thought you were a deaf-mute," she said, "Why haven't you said anything before this?"

"Well," the boy replied with a straight face, "up until now, everything's been okay."

That was Nibs all over. From December until May, everything must've been all right but when she started getting a hankering for Tomcat company, she was ready to talk about it loud and long.

The funny thing about it was that after about three days, I got tired enough, I shut her up in the back room and she never said a word.

The next time, though, I'm tearing a page out of the Johanesburg, South Africa, city zoo's book. About the time Nibs got over her first period of randomness, there was an article in the paper about the birth control pills given to lionesses and tigresses at the Jo'burg zoo when they were driving all their boy-friends to distraction.

The "pills" were actually hormone shots given to the she-cats in their necks...which is just about where I'm apt to give Nibs her next shot, with a 12 gauge shotgun, the next time she starts howling about her love life and how limited it is.

Letters say, 'Thanks' to community

Dear Sir:

I would like to take this space to say thanks to all the parents and sponsors of the Glades Lassie League who have helped us through the season.

Our league began five years ago with four teams and a lot of prayer. Since then we have expanded to seven teams, including a T-Ball division for girls ages 7-9.

Words cannot explain the emotions I feel when I see some of the girls who started out five years ago and have now grown into young women. I would like to think that the Lassie League has helped to mold them into the fine persons they are today.

Some of the League's primary aims are to teach responsibility, team work and good sportsmanship, as well as learning to play ball. While we may not have had 100% success, even if some of them leave us with a part or all of these traits I am proud.

The road to existence has been a little rocky, but thanks to people like Frank and Sue Teets, Lynette Thompson, Bubba and Paula Mock, and others too numerous to mention at this time, we have gotten a foothold in the community.

Special recognition should go to those who have taken the time and effort to get out on the field with these girls and coach, sometimes counsel, and sometimes discipline.

I am glad to say we are getting more parents involved such as Wilma Hatton, Gene Dodgen, Barbara Hartzog, Karon Bonavia, and Joy Lar- sen, who have all coached or assisted with coaching the girls this past season.

Then there are others who do not have any daughter playing by are willing to help such as Patty McLeod, Wanda McMillan, Linda Mims, Diane McDuffie, Lee Pettry, Sara Rives, Joe Guethle, Pete Webb, Buddy Little and Doris Velez.

I have probably missed some names, and if I did, I'm terribly sorry - but you are all remembered.

I would like to add that all of these people who help keep the Lassie League going are strictly volunteers - people who enjoy softball and working with the youths in our community. I hope to see all of you next year.

Sincerely,
/s/ Karen Hansford

Register to vote...

It's election year

Few times in the past has more been at stake for South Florida residents than is the case in 1980.

Inflation and the state of the economy trouble us all. The influx of more than 100,000 additional Cuban refugees, though not necessarily adverse, is already touching us.

We are increasingly faced with threats, foreign and domestic, real and imagined, that give us pause.

The presidential election is of great importance. But there are also going to be primaries and elections to determine who will fill Congress, the legislature, local constitutional offices and county and city boards.

These offices have as much to do in determining our future course as does the man in the White House.

Every registered voter should seriously contemplate the candidates and issues and vote in the upcoming elections.

Primary and election dates are Sept. 9 for the first primary, Oct. 7 for the second primary and Nov. 4 for the general election.

Those U.S. citizens 18 and over who are not registered still have time. Registration books close 30 days prior to each election. In other words, registration for the first primary will close 30 days prior to Sept. 9, and so on.

To insure your eligibility to vote in all three elections, register before 5 p.m., Aug. 9. For more information, contact your nearest supervisor of elections office.

Do your duty. Exercise your power to vote.

Economic news...

Continues to distress

There may be neither steel mills in the Glades to close down nor auto workers to lay off, but there is no doubt that the economic situation is hitting ever closer to home.

Housing starts are down and the average wage earner finds the ability to become a homeowner ever more elusive.

Inflation is too high. Even though eight million of our countrymen are now out of work, the cost of living continues to escalate, albeit at a supposedly lower rate.

We must look to our national leadership for solutions to the problem. The average wage earner only has to take a look at his paycheck stub to be reminded of his large part in financing our federal bureaucracy. From all indications, we're not getting our money's worth for our tax dollars.

Jimmy Carter, it has been said, is a decent and honorable man. The economic situation is not his creation. No one could dispute the combination of deficit budgeting, sinking dollar value, inflation, joblessness, apparent decline in American influence abroad, and shrinking productivity. All the while, the program of social services continues to grow as does the tax burden on the middle class.

Jimmy Carter may not be responsible for all this, but as Harry Truman once said, "the buck stops here."

Unless Carter can get this thing turned around in a hurry, Americans need to consider a change at the top this fall.

The last elected president American voters fired was Herbert Hoover. Hoover was one of the most intelligent, able men to ever hold the office of the presidency. But when the Great Depression, created by years of overspending on credit and disastrous crop failures, came along, voters turned their backs on Hoover.

Only about five months remain until the next presidential election. How much the country's economic situation improves by then will have much impact on Carter's chances of re-election.

By Congressman Skip Ralston
WASHINGTON — The constant stream of Cubans fleeing Castro's regime now numbers in excess of 85,000. And still more are expected.

Veterans Administration hospitals in Florida are ordered to reserve a specified number of beds for Cuban refugees, even though there is a lengthy list of veterans waiting for a VA hospital bed.

A group of Florida refugees appear one morning at the front door of a Florida hospital, demanding treatment but unable to pay. And, because the hospital was built with federal funds, it must accept and treat the Haitians, even though they are in this country illegally.

No wonder the administration's immigration policy is hemmed and hawed, trying to figure out what position it was going to take.

Florida needs help with refugees

Not until the howl and cry from Florida — and particularly from several of us in the Florida Congressional Delegation — reached immense proportions, did the administration act to bring some sort of order to its Cuban policy.

But by then it was too late. Unfortunately, the same is true of the administration's policy toward Haitians who are fleeing not a communist dictatorship but a nation so poor that job opportunities are virtually non-existent.

So, with no clear-cut direction from Washington, Castro took control. Not only did he see it as a chance to get rid of those Cubans so violently opposed to his regime they were speaking out openly, but he also presented a great opportunity to rid his nation of some criminals and some prostitutes, not to mention some mentally incompetent.

And, still the administration called a policy of chaos and confusion.

For weeks, the administration hemmed and hawed, sending out conflicting signals to those Cubans anxious to flee Castro's workers' paradise.

"We'll welcome you with open arms," was the word one minute; next it was "Don't go to Cuba for refugees or we'll confiscate you boat."

So, with no clear-cut direction from Washington, Castro took control. Not only did he see it as a chance to get rid of those Cubans so violently opposed to his regime they were speaking out openly, but he also presented a great opportunity to rid his nation of some criminals and some prostitutes, not to mention some mentally incompetent.

And, still the administration

around the world who'd dearly love the opportunity to leave their homeland and come to the United States?

So far, there's been no firm answer from the administration.

Let's not force Florida's already burdened hospitals to accept charity patients whose status in this country is in doubt because of the administration's unwillingness to make a decision.

Let's not force Florida's already burdened taxpayers to bear an additional load for bilingual education, or vocational education or any of the multitude of other services the refugee influx will need.

If this is to be national policy, let the administration say so, then come to the Congress for the money to handle it.

But don't let the burden fall completely on Florida.

Squeeze play...

Should be called off

The Carter administration wants to squeeze another $3.4 billion out of taxpayers by having banks, savings and loan and corporations withhold 15 percent of the interest paid on savings accounts and dividends.

The Internal Revenue Service believes $3.4 billion in income tax is now going uncollected because the IRS fails to catch up with all the people who fail to report interest and dividend payments on their tax returns.

Extending the tax-withholding concept to interest and dividends is being offered to Congress as a way to avoid $3.4 billion in spending cuts that might otherwise be necessary to balance the 1981 budget. Thus it reflects the philosophy that if balancing the budget requires sacrifice, it's better to inflict the pain of those who pay into the federal treasury than on those taking money out.

The withholding proposal has come up periodically in Congress for 30 years, and was most recently voted down in 1976. The arguments raised against it then are as valid as now. Banking institutions and corporations are saddled with enough accounting and paperwork demanded by the government without taking on this tax collecting chore.

Moreover, many senior citizens rely heavily on interest or dividend income for their support and are in low-income brackets where they wind up owing little or no tax at the end of the year. The 15 percent withholding would amount to their making an interest free loan to the government until their money is refunded after the filing of their annual return.

But zeroing in on interest and dividends as a tax target is a mistake, above all, as economic policy. Congress has just taken note of the need to stimulate savings and investment as a strategy against inflation. It voted in March to increase from $100 to $200 the amount of interest and dividend income that can be excluded from taxes, and it can be argued that the exclusion should be even higher or that interest and dividends should be exempt from taxes altogether.

As it is, a passbook savings account paying relatively low interest is hardly a paying proposition when savings are subjected to both the loss from inflation and a tax on the interest. The National Savings and Loan League estimates that at immediate effect of withholding tax from savings interest would be a shift of $4 billion out of savings accounts into investments not covered by withholding.

Where dividends are concerned, many economist have long argued that it is unfair and unsound to tax corporate earnings twice — once when the corporation pays taxes on its profits, and again when shareholders pay personal income tax on the same profits received as dividends.

Draft bill unpopular...

But necessary for security

After directing a barrage of hostile rhetoric at President Carter's plan to register 18- and 19-year-olds for the draft, the House has affirmed by a vote of 219-180 its belief that a voluntary Selective Service system is necessary, unpopular though it may be.

Now the president's request for $13 million to reactivate the Selective Service system, enabling it to deliver 650,000 men to the Army within 180 days of a draft call, will go to the Senate. There, it may be hoped, recognition of this nation's rapidly worsening military position will again carry the day.

Not that the standby draft machinery will relieve the severe manpower shortages in the armed forces. The all-volunteer military service is not working. The services find it nearly impossible to recruit qualified personnel, and skilled technicians and noncommissioned officers are leaving at an alarming rate. These grave problems demand their own remedies.

Reactivation of the Selective Service system would, however, provide a hedge against disaster should a military emergency arise from the worsening developments in the Middle East. The standby system could deliver the first draftees to Army training centers within 13 days after Congress authorized a call and the Army would receive its 100,000 man on the 28th day. By contrast, the Army says it would take 110 days to get its first draftees if it started from scratch in an emergency.

Much of the House opposition to the standby draft focused upon Mr. Carter's foreign policy bumbling. It is unfortunately true that the president has inspired no confidence by his inept responses to the Iranian crisis and the Soviet occupation of pital, but make an impact on Afghanistan. But, senators the local community as well. It is my understanding that the Selective Service bill is earned their 1000 hour pin. not an endorsement of Mr. Carter's policies. Rather, it is a sober acknowledgement of the helplessly exposed position into which he has thrust this nation.

I have always believed in giving "honor to whom honor is due," and for that reason, I should like to express my appreciation to the "Pink Ladies" Auxiliary of the Hendry General Hospital for the kindness, and the cheerful service extended to me during my recent stay in the hospital. These unselfish volunteers not only render an important service to the hospital, but make an impact on the most costly welfare programs. It is the refusal of a succession of Congresses to admit that the federal government is committed to a how it is with sacred cows.

Food stamps...

The sacred cow

In spite of the crisis atmosphere in Capitol Hill, no one really expected that the food stamp program would be allowed to collapse in June for lack of money. A program that benefits 20 million people — almost one out of 10 Americans — is too much of a sacred cow for Congress to let that happen.

But the mid-term financial crisis, now being resolved, has demonstrated how easily this bloated creature can munch through bales of dollars. The food stamp program was supposed to get by with $6.2 billion this fiscal year. After the emergency trip to the feedlot now being authorized, it will cost $9.2 billion.

A program designed to help needy families keep food on the table is going to cost more each year as long as inflation keeps driving up the price of food. But it is not food prices that are making food stamps the most costly welfare programs. It is the refusal of a succession of Congresses to admit that the federal government is committed to a how it is with sacred cows.

subsidy of grocery bills based on a reckless concept of "need." About 500,000 persons were receiving food stamps during its early years in the 1960s. They were individuals and families whose low income qualified them to call at Department of Agriculture warehouses to receive allotments of surplus food.

Forty times as many people demonstrated how easily this bloated creature can munch through bales of dollars. The food stamp program was supposed to get by with $6.2 billion this fiscal year. After the emergency trip to the feedlot now being authorized, it will cost $9.2 billion.

Pitch, hit, and run competition is planned

BELLE GLADE — Local Pitch, Hit & Run competition will be held July 12 at Airport Park starting at 9 a.m., according to Jane Williams, city recreation coordinator.

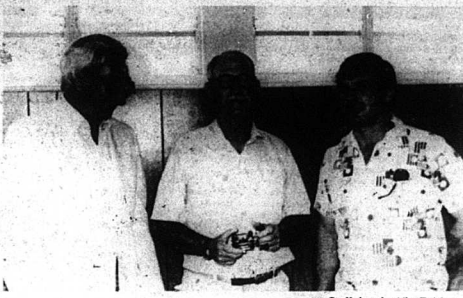

Sponsored nationwide by Burger King restaurants, the contest is open to boys and girls 8 to 13 years old. Registration forms are available at the Recreation Department in City Hall or at Burger King restaurant.

More than 1,000 competitors will be held in July with Pitch, Hit & Run finalist competing for trophies Sept. 27 in Cooperstown, N.Y., site of Baseball's Hall of Fame. Trophies will be awarded in on-field ceremonies Oct. 15 preceding the second game of the 1980 World Series. Winners and their parents attend as guests of Burger King. Pitch, Hit & Run is billed as the official youth program of major-league baseball. Youngsters compete in the three key baseball skills: pitching for accuracy, hitting for distance and running the bases for speed.

The program is sponsored by Burger King restaurants in cooperation with the President's Council on Physical Fitness.

Competition progresses through four elimination events — local, district, divisional and final until two competitors remain at each age level.

GOIN' FISHING after 26 years as a mathematics teacher, Jim Wadington, was given a retirement luncheon by his colleagues at Lakeshore Middle School Monday and presented a casting reel as a farewell gift. Principal Ed Foley, left, and Tom Long, chairman of the faculty committee, made the presentation. Wadington has taught at Lakeshore three years and is a former Pahokee Junior-Senior High School teacher.

Now is the time for flyfishing

By BIFF LAMPTON
Florida Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission

There are lots of ways to catch bream. You can load up with a cane pole, use a spinning rod and tiny spinner or even take the odd bluegill on bass tackle.

But in my opinion, the very best way to fill a cooler with 'gills, shiners, bream and other panfish is with the flyrod. That's exactly what 18 writers who fished in the Thlathlo Tumpka Invitational Flyfishing tournament on Lake Okechobee did April 28-30.

Thlathlo Tumpka means "to catch a fish with a fly" or something like that, in the Seminole Indian language. The contest is 11 years old and is the brainchild of Moore Haven's Harold Deter. Each year, outdoor writers from across the country are invited to compete with points given for bream and bass, both in weight and numbers.

Writers draw for guides whose fees have been paid by sponsors. They fish for four hours in the morning, then again for four hours in the afternoon. That's 24 hours worth of flycasting over a three day period, enough to give even the heartiest flyfisherman a bad case of tennis elbow.

To make matters worse, this year's contest was marked by windstorms that whitewatered the shallow, 715 square mile body of water. Flyrodders can't stand vast amounts of wind and the formula for success was first to find fishable water, then hunt fish.

Each year I start strong and from there it's all downhill. This year was no different. At the end of the first my limit of bluegills along with several small bass put me in second place. But at the end of the contest, I was barely able to hang onto fifth.

The contest was won by Ed Staley of the Melbourne area, president of the Florida Flyrod Club and editor of the club's newsletter. Last year's winner, Bill Brown, held down second by virtue of a last-minute five and half pound bass while Bill Sargent of Today newspaper and Bill Miller of the Fort Myers News-Press wound up third and fourth.

However, the contest aside, what thrilled me was the willingness of the big bluegills my guides found for me in a canal off Pelican Bay near Belle Glade.

Motor vehicles to inventory.

BELLE GLADE — The State Department of Motor Vehicles will conduct an inventory of license plates and decals at the branch office of the Palm Beach County Tax Collector in the Glades Office Building on Monday, June 30, 1980. The sale of vehicle license plates and decals will be suspended for that date until the inventory is completed, however, the office will be open for all transactions other than vehicle licensing.

Rotarians updated on water, sewer projects

BELLE GLADE — Rotarians were updated Tuesday on city projects involving water, sewer and a new park by City Manager Robert Sanders.

Sanders told the Rotarians the city commission has been busier than usual over the past two months, saying that while the commissioners normally meet three times a month in two regular and one workshop meetings, they had met 21 times so far in April and May.

Sanders said one of the reasons the commission has been so busy lately has been a pending $6 million bond issue to be used to pay for needed water and sewer improvements in the city.

He said the bond issue is expected to be sold in September or October, with most of the money to be used for water system improvements.

of Pahokee ended the season in second place and Perkins Farns was third.

Sportsmanship trophies were awarded to the girl on each team who was an outstanding example of good sportsmanship. Those players were: LaDonna Tyler of Junior Mary Frances Towell of Royals, Tammy Richey of People's Federal, Breta Brannon of Everglades Farm Equipment, Lachelle Johnson of Perkins Farns, Julie Abercrombie of Bank of Pahokee, and Vicki Bowles of South Bay Growers.

Also, to celebrate the league's fifth anniversary, each player was given a bronze medal with a picture of a woman softball player on it. To coincide with the party, the Lasso League also held a giveaway contest.

Nikki Baraus, 502 S.E. 4th Street, was the grand prize winner, receiving the 13" color television. Seminole Supply of Belle Glade won the $50 savings bond donated by the First American Bank of Pahokee, and promptly presented it back to the Lasso League as a gift. F. Argan won the bath towel set, given by the Bath and Bed Shop in Belle Glade.

In the T-Ball section, Bank

Those improvements include:

- The expansion of the city water plant from a 6 million gallon per day (GPD) capacity to 10 MGD. Sanders said the city is already being forced on a regular basis during the season to produce more water than the plant is designed to produce, including 13 consecutive days this past season.
- Addition 1 water storage.

Sanders said the city's three existing water tanks don't total 1 million gallons and plans now call for the construction of another tank with a 1 million gallon capacity.

- Improvement of the raw water intake, which is expected to decrease the amount of chemicals required to treat the water as well as eliminating some of the algae, with its corresponding result of bad odor and taste, and the amount of solids in the water.
- The intake line to the water treatment plant.

Besides the improvements to the city water system, roughly $1 million of the bond issue is earmarked to repair city sewer lines, decreasing the amount of water infiltrating into the system and washing out the treatment plant every time there's a heavy rain.

Sanders also talked about the new Airport Park, which he said will hopefully be ready for use in the next two months. He said there have been considerable delays caused by heavy rains recently.

"For a town of this size," he told the Rotarians, "to have not one but two parks of this size is unthinkable." He said the cost of the park will total about $350,000, $50,000 of which came from the county and the rest being paid for out of the city budget.

In another area, Sanders said the city is also beginning its budget process. He said this year's budget is about $7.5 million and next year's budget is expected to be similar in size.

Sanders asked the Rotarians to keep an eye out for vandals in the Lyons Park area, saying the city has spent $5,000 to $6,000 recently simply to repair the damage done by vandals.

How does boneless chicken breast baked in a fresh orange sauce sound? Or Smoked Ham topped with a thick delicious pineapple sauce. How about a nice juicy cut of Prime Rib covered with au jus and served with horseradish sauce?

We'll you can't find these kind of goodies just any old place around here. This kind of appreciation—Home style with a gourmet touch—can only be appreciated at Fannie's Place in the Day's Inn Motel on U.S. 27 and State Road 80 in South Bay. Fannie's Place is quite a surprising little restaurant, what with a great new menu which will go into effect on June 12th and a salad bar overflowing with fresh makings for a beautiful salad. The decor is very unique also - decorator crates (vegetable crates), preserved lacquered bread loaves (quite a touch, and TOUCH you will!), and vegetable baskets all add to a charming relaxed atmosphere the family can enjoy.

Fannie's new menu makeover also includes the breakfast menu. An English Muffin layered with one egg, a ham slice, and melted cheese and a side of hash browns is a featured breakfast item. Homemade Biscuits are offered also. Breakfast is served from 6 a.m. till 11 a.m. daily.

Luncheon specialties are a delight with chicken salad stuffed into a tomato with cottage cheese and fresh fruit on the side or fry fresh Okeechobee catfish, fried and served with hushpuppies.

There are daily specials too. So come on in and see for yourself the delightful changes at Fannie's Place in the Day's Inn Motel, South Bay.

Reminder on U.S. child labor laws

As the school year ends, many young people are looking for or beginning summer work, and the U.S. Department of Labor says that while a wide variety of work is open to youths federal child labor laws do place certain limitations on the hours those under 18 years of age may work and the kinds of jobs they may hold.

According to a U.S. Department of Labor spokesman, when both federal and state laws apply to a situation, the more stringent law prevails. Sixteen and 17-year-olds may be employed without a limit on hours worked, in any nonagricultural occupation other than those that have been declared hazardous by the secretary of labor. Hazardous occupations include:

- Working with explosives and radioactive materials.
- Operating certain power-driven woodworking, metalworking, bakery and paper products machinery.
- Operating various types of power-driven saws and guillotine shears.
- Operating most power-driven hoisting apparatus, such as non-automatic freight elevators, fork lifts and cranes.

- Operating certain power-driven meat processing machines; or most jobs in slaughtering and meat packing establishments.
- Most jobs in mining, roofing, demolition and excavation.
- Operating motor vehicles or working as outside helper on motor vehicles.

- Most jobs in logging and sawmill operations.
- Most jobs in the manufacture of bricks, tiles and similar products.

Workers 14 and 15 years of age can be employed in a variety of jobs such as clerical and office work, retail and food service jobs, and errand and delivery work by foot, bicycle or public transportation. They may also work at gas stations dispensing gas and oil and performing courtesy service.

They are also excluded from working in all hazardous occupations manufacturing and mining, most processing occupations, operating or tending certain power-driven machinery, and public messenger services. In work connected with warehousing, storage, transportation, communications, public utilities, and construction, they may hold office jobs.

From June 1 through Labor Day, when school is not normally in session, those age 14 or 15 may work between 7 a.m. and 9 p.m., but not more than 8 hours a day or more than 40 hours a week.

Child labor provisions do not apply to children who deliver newspapers to consumers; perform in theatrical, motion picture or broadcast productions; or work for their parents, except in manufacturing or hazardous nonagricultural occupations.

Laws pertaining to farm employment are somewhat different. For youths 16 and older, there are no restrictions; 14- and 15-year-olds may work outside of school hours in any farm job other than those declared hazardous; and 12- and 13-year-olds may work nonhazardous jobs outside of school hours with written parental consent or on a farm that also employs the parents.

A $100 BUSINESS CARD was found Monday when the first of a summer-long series of drawings were held at the Belle Glade Holiday Inn. Arthur Jones (left) presented a $100 bill to architect Dean B. Ellis of West Palm Beach after Ellis' business card had been drawn from a fishbowl. Jones said the businessman staying at the Inn will be invited to put their cards in a fishbowl and a winner will be chosen the last Thursday of the month.

Minors under 12 may work in nonhazardous agricultural jobs outside school hours with written parental consent on farms that have no employees who have to be paid the minimum wage.

Certain hazardous farm work may be done by youth 14 and 15 years old who have received certificates for satisfactory completion of special 4-H or vocational agricultural training courses.

Restrictions do not apply to children of any age working on a farm owned or operated by their parents.

Most state child labor laws require employers to obtain employment or age certificates (work permits) for minor employees. The federal Fair Labor Standards Act contains no such requirement.

However, employers who make it a practice to obtain permits can protect themselves from unintentionally violating the law.

Minors covered by the Fair Labor Standards Act must be paid the same minimum wage, $3.10 per hour, as adults, unless the employer obtains a student certificate from the Wage and Hour Division. Student workers for whom such certificates have been secured may legally be paid 85% of the minimum wage.

Census data is vital to nation's planners

How many children do married women expect to have within the next five years? Will they average the same number as in the recent past? Answers to these questions will help indicate the future growth and composition of the Nation's population, data vital to planners both in government and private business.

Forrest P. Cawley, Jr., Director of the Bureau's Regional Office in Atlanta, announces that information on birth expectations of American women will be collected during the week of June 16-20 from a sample of households in this area.

The questions are in addition to those usually asked in Households in this area are part of the sample of 84,000 across the country scientifically selected to represent a cross section of all U.S. households.

Results of this monthly survey provide a continuing measure of economic conditions in the nation. The April survey indicated that of the 104.4 million men and women in the civilian labor force, 97.2 million were employed. The nation's unemployment rate was 7.0 percent, compared to 6.2 percent in March.

Interviewers who will visit households in the Glades area include: Mrs. Selma Leavitt, Mrs. Lois Robinson, Mrs. Nancy Davis.

An outdoor antenna will always give better reception, but in many areas, an indoor antenna will be adequate.

1. The loop antenna; attaches directly to the UHF antenna terminals.
2. The rod-bow tie antenna; attaches to the telescoping antenna on portable sets.
3. The two-bay grid antenna; is free standing, larger, and receives more signal.

to your T.V. antenna. So, whichever antenna you use, it will work better if it is unobstructed, and in a high place such as the attic.

The Other Dial.

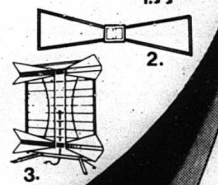

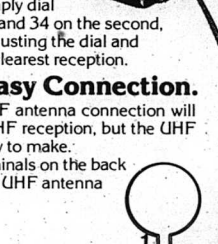

Most T.V. sets have two different tuning dials on the front of the set.

To tune in X-34, simply dial "U" on the first dial, and 34 on the second, then fine tune by adjusting the dial and indoor antenna for clearest reception.

Easy Connection.

Your present VHF antenna connection will not be suitable for UHF reception, but the UHF connection is very easy to make.

Locate the two terminals on the back of your set and hook-up the UHF antenna of your choice.

Vial of Life: Message in a bottle

By AILSA DEWING

For some people the door of their refrigerator could be the door to life. There among the jars of olives, pickles and jelly is another small container and it's called a "Vial of Life."

It doesn't hold medicine. Pills or drugs. Just a rolled up sheet of paper. But what is written on the paper could be a lifesaver.

For someone like Bill Thomas, of Belle Glade, for example, whose larynx has been surgically removed, leaving him speechless.

In an emergency situation, Thomas would have difficulty telling a doctor or a rescue worker whom to contact, who his personal physician is, what medication he requires or any other vital information they ought to know.

But Thomas is spared the worry of that possibility. Inside the Thomas's refrigerator is a Vial of Life that speaks for him.

The Vial of Life is an American Red Cross project and heading the program in the Glades area is Abby Zumpf. Since 1943 Mrs. Zumpf has been donating her time and service, as well as her training as a registered nurse, to the Red Cross. The Vial of Life project is but one of the latest services she heads. And her goal is to place lifesaving vials in every Glades home.

Since the program began here in the Glades last fall, Mrs. Zumpf has been concentrating her first efforts on the elderly and the handicapped - speaking before senior citizens groups, explaining the program to physicians and reaching out to the handicapped.

"We especially want to reach anyone who lives alone and has a medical problem," she explains. But anyone has "a medical problem" as far as the rescue squad is concerned when it answers a call and finds the victim unconscious.

EMT/Firefighter Doug Manger relates the case of an elderly woman who collapsed in her home while babysitting her young grandchildren.

"The kids could tell us she suffered asthma attacks but they didn't know she also had a heart problem." When EMT's arrived on the scene they can't know whether an unconscious patient is suffering an allergic reaction, a heart attack or another of many possibilities.

"We can only try to restore vital life signs and leave it to the hospital personnel to discover what the problem is and how to treat it," says Manger.

Obviously, the fire department is among the Vial of Life program's strongest supporters and Chief Pete Webb has a supply on hand for free distribution.

Having a Vial of Life in the refrigerator would only be a half measure if nobody knew it was there. Part of the program includes setting up the signposts.

So together with the plastic vial and the information sheet go three self-sticking decals which read "American Red Cross Vial of Life" and display the familiar red cross symbol.

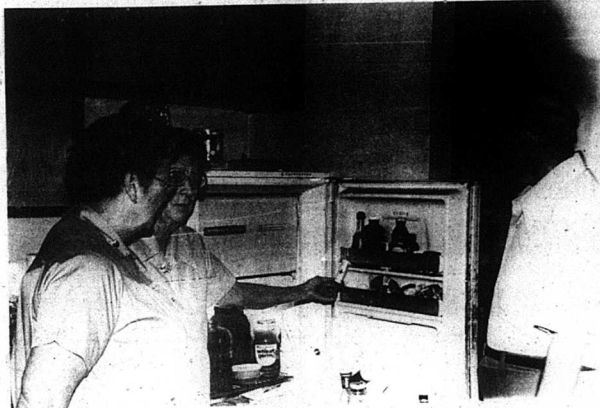

THE RED CROSS in the window is a sign to Mrs. Zumpf and others that they will find lifesaving information inside the house.

Located 16 miles out of Belle Glade, (in the sticks some folks might say) Shawano Village is a community of about 40 souls. When you tell folks you live in Shawano Village, you either get a blank look and a question of where in the heck is that, or you get one of those disbelieving "sure you do" looks that let you know they've never heard of it in all the years they've lived in Belle Glade, therefore, it just doesn't exist!

Whenever it becomes necessary to give directions on how to get to Shawano, it seems I always get a very nasal sounding lady on the phone who wants to know my street address and house number. It used to be embarrassing to have to tell people that we were so backward out there that "I'm sorry, we don't have street addresses, and I don't have a house number, could I just give directions?" Well, that problem was solved a few years ago when we dusted off a map of the village and discovered that our streets did indeed have names and that lo and behold, I lived on C Street Shawano Village. That's enough to give you the big head!

So, we do exist people, and most of us are very proud to be from good old Shawano.

Life in the village is like a short step back in time where things were a little slower and country folks had their own way of do'n things. Being a COLD COMFORT takes on a whole new meaning when it means there's a Vial of Life in the refrigerator. Mrs. Bill Thomas, center, demonstrates the best place for keeping the life-saving information.

"The first sticker goes on the front door or on a window beside the door," explains Mrs. Zumpf. This tells rescuers that there is a Vial of Life in the house.

Red Cross has selected the refrigerator as the best possible location because "nearly everybody has one and it's fire resistant."

The second sticker, therefore, is placed on the refrigerator door. But if the vial is placed elsewhere - in a desk drawer or on a cupboard shelf, for example - that's where the sticker should be placed, Mrs. Zumpf says.

The third sticker is placed on the vial, and the vial itself is taped into place to hold it, preferable on top shelf of the refrigerator, Mrs. Zumpf says.

Because the Vial of Life program was only initiated in the Glades last fall, relatively few vials have been placed in homes. But they are free for the asking and there are plenty to go around.

Anyone who wants a Vial of Life can contact Mrs. Zumpf, pick one up at the fire station or from Doug Wooden at the county welfare department.

It's too soon to relate a success story, to relate an incident where a Vial of Life saved a life in the Glades area chairman of the Vial of Life program, and Bill Thomas, look on.

by supplying vital information in a life-or-death situation.

But there are plenty of stories that could have had a happier ending if someone had had the right information at the right time, such as a Vial of Life.

Here they are! Palm Beach County's 'Dairy Days' recipes

Recipes of the three top winners in the Palm Beach County Dairy Days contest, including Diane Williams' prize-winning recipe for Broccoli Cream Almondine Soup, have been released by Arien C. Jones, county extension home economics agent.

Miss Williams, a Belle Glade resident, placed first in the "Casserole and One Dish" category of the contest last month.

Broccoli Cream Almondine Soup

3 Tbls. cornstarch
3 cups milk (or 2 cups milk and 1 cup cream)
2 Tbls. butter
1 Tbl. Parmesan cheese
1/2 tsp. garlic salt
1/4 cup beer or champagne
1/4 cup sliced almonds
1 pkg. frozen broccoli spears (or 1 bunch fresh broccoli, approx. 10 oz.)
1/2 tsp. Worcestershire sauce (optional)
1/4 cup sliced mushrooms (or fresh sliced mushrooms to equal)
1/4 cup fresh or dried chopped chives
salt, onion salt
white pepper

Melt butter in medium skillet. Add mushrooms and saute over medium-high heat for one minute; set aside. DO NOT DRAIN.

Prepare broccoli according to package directions, leaving stalks whole. (If using fresh broccoli, trim into spears and boil in 1-inch of water in covered pan for 10 minutes over medium heat.) Drain.

In 3-quart saucepan, measure cornstarch and add milk slowly, stirring constantly until blended. Worcestershire sauce may be added if desired. Add Parmesan cheese and garlic salt and cook over low heat, stirring constantly, until thick and creamy (DO NOT BOIL) about 5 minutes. Season to taste with salt, white pepper, and onion salt. Add chives and beer (or champagne). Stir and add mushroom/butter mixture, almonds, and broccoli. Let simmer one minute to blend flavors.

Serve as is or: Divide into individual bowls; garnish with a sprinkle of chow mein noodles and a sprig of parsley. OR: Four into large stoneware (ovenproof) bowl, garnish with triangle slices of mild cheddar cheese arranged around perimeter of bowl with overlapping edges and points toward center. Sprinkle chopped egg yolk around edges. Scatter French fried onion rings through center and toast under broiler until cheese melts.

Serve 4-6, 94 cents per serving.

Winner in the "Vegetable Dish and Salad" category was Jack Lorosa, a Lake Worth resident.

Carrot Pudding

3 cups cooked carrots
1 onion, minced
1 egg
1 tsp. nutmeg
1 cup milk
1 tsp. sugar
Pepper and salt to taste
1/2 cup bread crumbs
1/2 stick butter

Put all the ingredients in a blender, except bread crumbs and one-half of the butter. Blend until smooth. Pour into a buttered casserole. Sprinkle bread crumbs on top. Melt remaining butter and pour over bread crumbs. Bake at 350° for 35 minutes. Serve hot.

Serves 4 to 6. Cost per serving: 13 1/2 cents ($.81).

Joan Diamond of Boca Raton was named winner in the "Dessert" category and her recipe was entered in the statewide competition as the Palm Beach County winner.

Joan's Fabulous Fruit Tart

Pecan Shell:
1 1/4 cup flour
1/2 cup soft butter
3 Tbls. sugar
1/2 can finely-chopped pecans

Blend ingredients well and pat firmly and evenly onto sides and bottom of a 9 1/2" fluted tart pan with removable sides. Bake at 400° for 14-17 minutes. Cool.

FROM THE GRAPEVINE

By BRENDA BUNTING

small community with only two streets, it is almost impossible not to know who comes and goes and whose house they stopped at. Therefore, as you might know, everybody knows everybody's business.

Most evenings a few of the women in the village get together to take a walk down a shady side road while the kids ride ahead on their bikes or run ahead and explore. And on more than one occasion someone would comment that wouldn't it be nice if we could all get together as a community and do something together.

Well, recently we did just that. The occasion was a graduation barbecue for the twins Kent and Keith Butler who have just graduated from Glades Central High School.

For weeks in advance, everyone discussed whether they were going and what kind of food they were going to bring. We were all looking forward to it. Saturday dawned bright and hot. By afternoon clouds were building, but it still looked like it would be a good afternoon.

Tables were set up early in the morning and by ten o'clock Granny Matthews was out shucking buckets of corn in the shade and the meat was thawing.

By late afternoon everyone had started arriving and it became obvious that we were going to have good food, and plenty of it.

Needless to say, we all had wonderful time of fellowship and joking, swapping recipes and discussing our kids.

We even decided that we ought to try to do this again sometime in the future. So, maybe we will, just maybe we will.

Consider hurricanes at tax time

Income taxes should be considered during your hurricane planning, according to the Internal Revenue Service.

Losses from disruption and tragedy of property losses, victims often find they are ill-prepared to take advantage of tax relief available under the law.

Loss of personal property due to a hurricane is deductible on federal income tax returns, subject to a $100 limitation. Loss of business property or property held for the production of income is deductible in full without regard to the $100 limitation.

In addition, in areas declared federal disaster areas by the President of the United States, disaster victims have the option of declaring their losses on previous year tax returns and receiving a quick refund.

Claims require documentation on income tax returns. Receipts and photographs, especially of valuable items, can be extremely helpful in establishing and substantiating the allowable deductions.

Losses to the home, furniture, automobiles and other property are generally deductible if the losses exceed the actual or expected insurance recovery.

Although the first $100 of a nonbusiness loss is not deductible and a separate $100 limitation applies to each individual casualty, hurricane losses are usually treated as a single casualty and only one $100 limitation is applied.

To determine the amount of loss for each item claimed, you should know the original cost or other basis of the item, and its fair market value. If the item is lost or completely destroyed, the loss is usually the basis or fair market value just before the loss, whichever is less. If the item is damaged, the loss is the difference between its fair market value just before and just after the disaster. Often the decrease in the fair market value may be measured by the cost of repairing the item.

For additional information contact the IRS by either calling the telephone number in your directory or visiting their nearest office. Also, IRS has two helpful booklets, Publication 547, "Tax Information on Disasters, Casualty Losses and Thefts," and Publication 584, "Workbook for Determining Your Disaster Loss."

A little time spent gathering documentation such as photographs, receipts and bills of sale on your property and belongings, and the storage of these in a secure place, may prove to be a wise investment of time.

Consumers should be wary of some mosquito traps

Devices billed by some companies as mosquito traps actually trap for unwary consumers, says a University of Florida entomologist.

Philip Koehler, who is with UF's Institute of Food and Agricultural Sciences (IFAS), says light traps and sound devices are ineffective as mosquito controls, despite claims by manufacturers to the contrary.

Light traps, which electrocute mosquitoes on charged grids after attracting them to a light, are effective only to gather information about mosquito populations, he says.

"Research shows you never kill enough mosquitoes to control populations in open areas," Koehler says.

"Even though you might feel good that you've got a big pile of mosquitoes dead in the morning when you take a look at your light traps, you've attracted enough moquitoes in from surrounding areas to offset whatever number you've killed," Koehler says.

Koehler says companies have been claiming the University of Florida and USDA laboratories have endorsed their light traps - which cost from $60 to $200 or more - for mosquito control, but this is false. The labs recommend light traps only to gather samples of the 67 mosquito species in Florida for information purposes.

Battery-operated devices that give off a buzzing sound, supposedly to repel mosquitoes, are another waste of money, Koehler says.

"All the sound devices that have been evaluated have been completely ineffective," he says. Some scientists believe mosquitoes, like moths, avoid the high-frequency sound waves used by bats to home in on their prey. This theory has not been tested, and devices on the market do not emit these high-frequency sounds.

Koehler says there are some commercial controls that work, however. He recommends using foggers with five percent malathion solution to reduce mosquito populations in limited outdoor areas. Fogging a small area, such as an outdoor patio, an hour or so before you intend to use it will keep insects away temporarily, except when it is windy.

To keep the pests away longer, Koehler suggests burning coils that contain pyrethrin or lamp oils of oil citronella.

As for insect repellents applied to the body, Koehler says compounds containing DEET - Diethyl toluamide - fight ticks, fleas, chiggers and flies as well as mosquitoes. The concentration of DEET, various repellents ranges from less than ten percent to almost 50 percent. Koehler says the higher the concentration, the better the repellent.

What breed of cow gives sweetest milk? What about UHT milk? Maybe the cow that jumped over the moon?

In our space age technology, that's a possibility, but not really.

Today milk appears on the market in many forms to appeal to the varied tastes and desires of consumers. It still comes primarily from Holstein, Guernsey, Jersey, Ayrshire and Brown Swiss cows. Processing developments have made possible a myriad of types.

The standards of composition of milk and milk products in the U.S. have been established by state and local governments. Federal standards of identity have been promulgated for many dairy products shipped in interstate commerce.

Whole Milk: contains not less than 3.25 percent milkfat, and must contain not less than 8.25 percent solids-not-fat. The nonfat solids are the water-soluble vitamins, A, B1, B2, B6, C, E, K, and minerals, calcium, phosphorus, and potassium.

Lowfat Milk: has had sufficient milkfat removed to bring the levels to between 0.5 and two percent. It also contains at least 8.25 percent solids-not-fat. It must contain 2000

International Units (IU) of vitamin A per quart. Vitamin A is added to offset its loss caused by removal of some of the milkfat. Milk in this category is labeled lowfat, two percent milk or one percent milk. If nonfat milk solids are added to reach the ten percent solids-not-fat level, the product must be labeled "protein fortified" or "fortified with protein."

Skim Milk: can also be called nonfat milk. It has had sufficient milkfat removed to bring the level to less than 0.5 percent. It must contain not less than 8.25 percent solids-not-fat and must be fortified with vitamin A. If nonfat solids are added to reach the ten percent level, it must be labeled "protein fortified" or "fortified with protein."

Chocolate Milk: is made by adding chocolate or cocoa and sweetener to whole milk. Chocolate Skim Milk: is made by adding chocolate or cocoa and sweetener to skim milk. It must contain 2000 IU of vitamin A per quart. Addition of vitamin D is optional.

Evaporated Milk: is canned whole milk concentrate containing not less than 7.5 percent milkfat and 25.5 percent milk solids. It is prepared by evaporating enough water, under vacuum, from fresh whole milk to reduce the weight of moisture and not more than 1 1/2 percent by weight of milkfat, unless otherwise indicated; is fortified with vitamins A and D; and has all the proteins, minerals and water soluble vitamins of the nonfat portion of milk.

Ultra-High Temperature Processed Milk: The International Dairy Federation has defined UHT milk as a milk which has been subjected to a continuous-flow heating process at a high temperature for a short time and which afterwards, has been aseptically packaged. UHT milk when aseptically packaged can be stored without refrigeration up to six months.

GCHS graduation activities are held

BELLE GLADE - Some 210 seniors at Glades Central Community School received diplomas at annual commencement exercises held in Memorial Stadium Friday evening.

After hearing Dr. Effie Grear, principal of the local high school, proclaim that students had "fulfilled the state's requirements for receiving a high school diploma, the seniors jubilantly carried out the traditional hat tossing in the sky routine, hugging fellow classmates, family and friends, while tears flowed.

Former West Area Superintendent H.W. "Dick" Berryman presented the diplomas. Valerietta Vivienne Rainbow gave the farewell address, Salutatorian Charris Hurrell gave the welcome and senior class president Alwilda Rosario gave senior reflections.

Dressed in gold and maroon gowns, Miss Rainbow and Miss Hurrell led the seniors into the stadium. Women graduates carried yellow candles. Honor graduates followed in the procession.

Graduating with honors together with Miss Rainbow and Miss Hurrell were Marjorie Singletary, David Keith Reese, Wanda Good, Awilda Rosario, Charles Miller, Lucina Cullum Kimberly Harrell, Christina Zawadzki and Jose Corona.

Domestic assault workshop set

A task force workshop for volunteers in the county's Domestic Assault Project will be conducted Wednesday, June 18, from 10 a.m. until noon at the Belle Glade Crisis Unit, 130 SE Avenue E.

Purpose of the workshop is to begin training volunteers to serve as advocates for victims of domestic assault in the community.

Leaders will be Mary Kay Murray, director of the West Palm Beach Domestic Assault Shelter, and Velma Troy, criminal justice specialist with the county's Domestic Assault Project.

PBJC registration is slated

June 24 is the senior citizens registration date at all four Palm Beach Junior College campuses, according to Dr. Edward M. Essey, PBJC president.

Senior citizens aged 62 or older are eligible to register for up to two credit courses for a fee of $4 each on a space available basis, Essey said.

At the Glades campus, registration will be conducted

PBIC SOUTH CAMPUS GETS LAND

Florida Board of Regents has deeded 10 acres of land at Florida Atlantic University to Palm Beach Junior College for the erection of permanent buildings there for PBIC South.

An additional 43 contiguous acres, north of the deeded land, has been set aside for future expansion of PBIC South, according to Dr. Edward M. Essey, PBIC president.

Han's for PBIC South erect permanent buildings on the FAU campus have been under discussion for several years with the full backing of the FAU administration.

Currently PBIC classes are held in FAU classrooms during the day and at Henderson University School in the evenings.

The growth of PBIC South, now enrolling approximately 2,000 students in Fall and Winter terms, is straining available classroom space to the limit, and suitable classrooms in other south county locations are being sought for the fall term.

The deed from the Board of Regents contains a reverter clause, specifying that the land would revert to FAU in 10 years if educational buildings were not erected in that time.

"We will be in operation long before that time," Dr. Essey said. "We have already secured a donor who will help us with the development of our first building there."

Taking It From the Top

By REV. DAVID T. EVANS
Everglades Presbyterian Church

With the way things are going on this earth some of us are thinking that the next world has got to be a better place to live. Since World War II, life has been good for most of us. Now with terrorism, rioting, inflation, volcanoes erupting and tragic crashes of all kinds we might be as the Hebrews of the Old Testament looking for the city prepared for them by God.

The writer of the Letter to the Hebrews has called the roll of the faithful beginning with Abel, Enoch, Noah, Abraham and Sarah. Then he says, "These all died in faith, not having received what was promised, but having seen it and greeted it from afar, and having acknowledged that they were strangers and exiles on earth."

The writer goes on to say, "God is not ashamed to be called their God, for He has prepared for them a city." God was unashamed because these faithful were not of the world. These followers of the Lord knew that this world was not the end of their journey. They were in the world carrying out God's plans on the earth.

Hebrews is telling us that these faithful had their eyes on being at home with God. To them life on earth was only a transient existence and the eternal was what counted with them. They knew the material and earthly things had no lasting value.

Their eyes of faith had seen a vision of their true relationship with God. The Father had given them earthly tasks and they were faithful. They carried out these tasks but their real goal was for a better land and life.

God was unashamed because they wanted a better country. They lived close to God and their closeness made them aware of man's original fellowship with God. The disciples of Jesus felt this way and wanted Him to return so they could be with Him.

Now that we know God and the greatness of life with Christ we have greater possibilities of being faithful. Christ is made real to us through the Holy Spirit and serves as a motivation to be faithful.

Let us remember if we are of God we are not of the world. We are truly strangers and exiles. This is why we feel uncomfortable in this world. Yet we have tasks given us by God. We are only traveling through the world doing God's will but keeping our eyes on that which is eternal.

Let us be faithful to our true allegiance—the heavenly city which God has prepared for us. We are to let God's work as Abraham and others did and God will take care of the future.

Let us be men and women of faith so that God will be unashamed and will prepare a place for us—a heavenly city.

Domestic assault work wins national award

Palm Beach County has been honored for its Domestic Assault Project by the National Association of Counties (NACo).

NACo achievement awards are presented to counties which have developed new programs to enhance or expand county services to citizens.

Palm Beach County's Domestic Assault Project has assisted over 2,000 victims of spouse abuse. Its service include: direct support counseling for victims of family violence; aiding victims in finding shelter, legal assistance, and in dealing with court cases; and presenting educational programs to law enforcement agencies and the community.

The project has acted as an advocate for domestic violence victims. As a result, new programs and services are available to battered women in Palm Beach County whether they choose to remain in the relationship, or pursue a life independent of their mate, and seek relief through the criminal justice system or seek civil solutions to the problem.

Achievement award case studies are distributed by NACo to other counties to serve as examples of innovative programs.

The National Association of Counties is the Washington representative for county government in the United States.

County achievement awards will be presented at NACo's 1980 annual conference in Las Vegas June 29-July 3.

Area Church News

Gwen was in kindergarten, and for fun, we'd play "How big?"

"How big is the beachball, Gwen?" Mary would ask.
"Two inches!" she'd answer.
"How big is Daddy?"
"Eighteen inches!" said the thirty-six-inch giant.
"How big is that building?"
"A mile! No, two miles!"

So it went until Gwen learned about the standards of length: the inch, foot and mile. Now, at eight, a beachball is "twenty inches." Daddy has grown to "six feet," and that building over there is "about two-hundred feet." Now, Gwen has a better idea of the "bigness" of our physical world.

But what of spiritual dimensions? Gwen must learn to gauge problems, worries, hopes and aspirations—lest her troubles seem too big, her dreams too small. She will turn to God's living Word, the Bible—taught in her church.

A little girl learned. Will you?

Increases in watering frequency by many people has increased incidence of various types of lawn diseases. With temperatures steadily increasing and people's tendency to overwater, conditions are ideal for disease development.

Many people who are not experts fail to recognize some of the early symptoms of lawn diseases and end up with a costly reseeding or reseeded job that could have been prevented. Even if you don't have a degree in horticulture, it is not that difficult to recognize initial symptoms of various lawn diseases.

One of the most common diseases appearing at this time of year and throughout the summer months is called brown patch. Infected grass usually turns a yellowish-brown and the disease spots are circular in nature. The spots, of course, are quite small at the beginning but enlarge rapidly.

This particular disease is destructive to the leaf blades as well as stems and roots. In many instances failure to control this promptly will result in death of large patches of turfgrass. You will find that brown patch frequently shows up in areas that are not drying out well such as the shade of trees or north sides of buildings and can spread very quickly to other areas of the yard through the use of moving implements or even on the soles of your feet by walking through infected patches.

Another common disease is called gray leaf spot. This first occurs as a spotting on the foliage that looks like the grass has been splattered with brown paint. This particular disease is as serious in nature as brown patch in that it rarely kills grass but certainly by weakening the grass could cause it to become more susceptible to more serious problems.

You may also have areas of lawn with very poor drainage or that are in shaded areas most of the time and a slime mold may develop. This looks like a greenish-black layer of yello on the soil surface and it can smother out grass in that particular area. Difficult-to-control slime molds are best combated by drying the area out if possible or improving the drainage in that area.

Most lawn diseases fortunately are ones that can be controlled with one of several broad-spectrum fungicides available at most garden centers. Some of these products are wettable powders while others come in liquid form. Make sure that you apply these strictly according to label directions in order to get complete control.

If a heavy infestation of fungus is present it may be necessary to treat two or more times at 10 to 14 day intervals. Watering in the early morning and to keep it in a good dry off before nightfall will aid in slowing disease development.

The key, however, to reducing fungus invasion in the first place is to not overwater your lawn and to keep it in a good healthy state of growth at all times. When overwatered, grass is easily invaded by fungus.

Farm pay highest

For the second quarter in a row, Florida's agricultural employers paid the highest wages per hour of any state in the nation.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture's Statistical Reporting Service's labor report for the period April 6-12, reports all Florida's hired workers averaged $4.38 per hour, an increase of 12.7 percent since April 1979. Piece rate workers averaged $5.40 per hour, a 19.8 percent increase since April 1979.

Florida Fruit and Vegetable Association Labor Division Manager, George Sorn, said, "We are pleased to be able to report that Florida's agricultural employer's paid the highest wages in the nation for the second quarter. We hope this trend will continue."

FFVA is a medium for cooperative unity of effort by producers, shippers, packers and processors of Florida agricultural commodities in their negotiations with public and private agencies.

Tropical fruit festival June 29 in WPB

The Annual Tropical Fruit Festival sponsored by the Palm Beach County Cooperative Extension Service, Palm Beach Chapter of the Rare Fruit Council and Zill's Mango Nursery will be held Sunday, June 29, from 1 to 6 p.m. at the Mounts Building Auditorium, 531 North Military Trail, West Palm Beach.

This annual program features one of the largest displays of tropical fruits and tropical fruit products in the South Florida area. Approximately 100 exotic tropical fruits will be displayed and limited quantities of fresh fruit will be given out for sampling.

In addition, Extension Home Economics agents will have products made from tropical fruits available for tasting as well as recipes for using various tropical fruits. The Mounts Horticultural Learning Center at the rear of the Mounts Building will be open during the festival hours to allow people attending the event to see most of the tropical fruit trees in the park.

This free show attracts thousands of local and county residents each year interested in growing or using tropical fruits. For additional information call 683-1777 weekdays from 8:30 to 5:00.
